Cambridge is located about 8 miles SouthEast of Boston's Logan Airport and it may take from 14 minutes to 16 minutes via Interstate 90 East Highway to the Boston's Logan Airport depending on traffic. Via Cambridge St and State 1A N Highway it may take 15 minutes to 16 minutes depending on traffic. Please allow plenty of time to make sure you will not be late for your flight.

The city of Cambridge is part of the Greater Boston area of Massachusetts. It is best known for being the home of two world-class universities, Harvard University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), located within just two miles of each other. Cambridge is bordered by the city of Boston, located on the other side of the Charles River just 3 miles SE, Somerville (to the north), Watertown (to the west), and Arlington (to the northwest).

Settled in 1630 by a band of Puritans from England, Cambridge was originally called "Newtowne", however, the founding of Harvard College in 1636 prompted the choice of a new name. The name "Cambridge" was chosen because the majority of the settlers were familiar with Cambridge University in England. The year 1636 also marked the incorporation of the town, which became a city in 1846 when the original town (Old Cambridge) merged with two villages (Cambridgeport and East Cambridge). The city's major industrial focus in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries centered on factories. Since then, the emphasis has shifted to technology-based enterprises. Present day Cambridge is an incredibly college-influenced community.
