Everett is a city in Middlesex County, MA, near Boston.

Originally part of Charlestown, and later Malden, however it separated from Malden in 1870 and in 1892, Everett changed from a town to a city.

The city was named after Edward Everett, a former U.S. Representative, U.S. Senator, 15th Governor of Massachusetts, Minister to Great Britain, and United States Secretary of State. Edward Everett was also President of Harvard University for a time.

Everett is bordered by Malden on the north, Revere on the east, Chelsea on the southeast, Boston and the Mystic River on the south, and Somerville and Medford on the west. Everett is 4
